Pulling Apart

This is a very hands on lesson, and we'll have a huge amount of fun with this! Essentially, our aim is to take the full lick that we have now learnt, and start to break it up into mini sections, and see what we can get out of those separately as well as all together. What might be useful is to look at the tab now like this...

You can see how we can break a relatively small lick up into so many little parts. Each little part is a phrase and an idea to work with, and we can take our time to see what we can get out of it.

Licks

Dan takes you through the process of properly learning a lick. Once you understand and have experience working through this process, you can apply it to every single guitar lick or phrase that you learn, no matter how long or short!

push and pull all the little sections within the lick as far as you can, and I demonstrate that in the lesson itself. Watch the lesson and try it for yourself, all over the same jam track for now.
