"Don't Say I Never Try"

Time to put all your powerchords and rhythm learning into practice with this cool Green Day style song. This is a full song in powerchords so it will really test your finger strength, understanding of rhythm, and ability to play dynamics!

Your first job, before even looking at the tab below, is to simply listen to the whole song. Get the feel and groove in your head and body before

The structure

As you're listening through to the song, rather than study any tab at this point it's worth noting down the structure. This will really help as you put any song together, so great to get some practice in here.

Which parts repeat? Where is the chorus and the verse? Are there any sections that are a bit of a one off? These are the kind of questions you want to be asking yourself as you go through this. The way I see the structure is:

Intro, Chorus, Verse, Re-intro, Chorus, Verse, Re-intro, Chorus (with slight changes)

As you listen through to the song, see if you can visualise this structure? Can you identify as each section comes in, and then moves to the next? We'll break it all down starting in the next lesson, but this is great ear training for now!
