Pentatonic Sequence

Sequences on the guitar are what lead players use to create extended musical runs and fast solos, so we definitely want to start learning how to play them! A sequence is normally taking a scale shape and playing some kind of repetitive pattern through it. The pentatonic sequence we are learning is called "3 up, 1 down" and we are learning it in the key of B minor. Let's take a look at the tab and scale shape:

This is another great exercise to add to your guitar gym warm ups, and play with a drum loop here in the Club or a metronome. You now have plenty of variety, with the spider exercises and

pentatonic
exercises to play around
with!
