Minor CAGED Chords

The easiest way to learn minor CAGED chords is to take major CAGED chords and alter one note. All you need to understand is a simple bit of chord construction theory.

To create major chords you take the 1st, 3rd and 5th from the major scale. All of our major CAGED chords are constructed following that theory. For minor chords, you take the major construction and flatten the 3rd. This gives you 1st, b3rd and 5th from the major scale. So, all we need to do is take our major chords, locate the 3rd, and flatten it. Take a look at the fretboard diagrams for the chords in the key of G, in both major and minor.
