The Nitty Gritty  0%

In this unit we dive into a bit more 'guitar theory'. This is so important as we begin to want to navigate the whole neck. We are bridging general music theory with the guitar itself. Don't skip this unit!

Finding the rest...

When it comes to finding the rest of the notes on the neck you can use our handy little octave trick. The shapes look like this, and the tips of how to work through it are below too!

Octaves from the E string

Octaves from the A string

Top tips

 Fret the note on the E or A string, then go 2 strings down and 2 frets across. This will give you the same note, up an octave (12 notes).

 Fret the note on the D or G string, then go 2 strings down and 3 frets across. This will again give you an octave up from those strings.

 Use this method to fret any note on the fretboard, and work backwards until you are on the E or A string where you are familiar.

This is a great thing to try when you have just a few minutes on the guitar and want to do something productive! Ask a friend to test you by pointing to any note on the whole neck. Fret that note and work backwards using these shapes until you are on the E or A string. At that point, hopefully, you will have the E and A string learnt well enough to quickly shout out the correct note! Enjoy 😊
