Spider Exercise

We have been doing a lot of work with the pentatonic scales, but we need to now prepare our fingers for more intricate scales and solos. These spider exercises really help improve finger independence, and the 1,3,2,4 is a particularly unnatural feeling exercise... which is why it's perfect! You have probably worked through some Spider Exercises in the past, so you are welcome to use other exercises at this point too, but let's give this one a go first!

We will now be learning a cool spider exercise to help improve your speed and accuracy on the guitar, we will be learning new licks and getting them 'under your fingers' so you can improvise with them whilst understanding how to use them over any track.

don't need
the full tab
to work this one out! It's the same
thing
repeated all
the way up the neck. I
would recommend using the

interactive tab or the drum beat to make sure you are tracking your speed!
